Dedication

This little book belongs to the universal Cat Lover. It represents a five years' unremitting labor of love. Founded on confidence in advancement of the domestic cat in America, it bespeaks his ultimate superiority over cats of other lands. Hereby, it is dedicated, individually, to each dear mother heart, which, failing of rightful heritage turns to this next of kin — the soft, warm, loving, "little brothers" — and, in appreciation of blessings conferred through the mysterious and half-divine fellowship of brutes, seeks to uplift their race into a plane where one day they may be better understood of man.

PREFACE

The domestic cat is not mentioned in Biblical narrative. He is presumed to have originated, with other domesticated types, in far Eastern lands. The beginnings of recorded history relate that he was a pampered pet and even a worshipped idol in semi-tropical climes. In the middle ages, we are told, he was a luxury, a necessary servant, and an object of persecution. He is not indigenous to the Western Hemisphere, nor is he found in Indian tradition. His advent in the Americas seems to have been with the early white settlers.

No information is to be had concerning breeds until comparatively recent times, when New England sea captains began to bring home long-haired specimens as mementoes (sic) of strange shores. They were regarded as great curiosities, so it may be inferred that the cats to which the colonists had been accustomed, either at home or in America, were not long-haired.

Not until the last century were long-haired Eastern cats carried overland to England, and not until the last decade were they bred for show and for sale. Restricted breeding of short-haired varieties was not undertaken in England until the last few years, and has not yet been seriously attempted in America.

The operation of the Tariff Law of 1897 excluded the better class of cats from the United States, except when introduced by persons of wealth, when smuggled or entered upon false valuations or through other culpable devices. A paternal government, seeking to protect home industries, had placed a prohibitive customs duty of 20 per cent ad valorem on live animals unless pure bred and imported for breeding purposes. In construing the law, the method adopted for determining eligibility to free entry through pure breeding was the recognition by the Government of studbooks in which pure breeding was a prerequisite of registration.

Enough material and interest had accumulated in the United States to afford an incentive for breeding and showing pet cats. Clubs had been organized and records were kept of the cats owned by their members. At least three of these registers appeared in print. As the fancy grew and customs duties, under proper appraisements, became more burdensome, the desirability of importing pure bred breeding animals free of duty gained prevalence. To that end the establishment of a studbook having government recognition was imperative.

Two of the club registers were offered for recognition.
They did not meet the requirements of the Tariff Law and were promptly rejected. Presuming that the difficulties attending its failure involved technicalities, which might be met by some one on the ground, the aid of a Washington lady was evoked to ascertain why one of these records had been rejected and if the objectionable features could be removed. Inquiry showed that the imperfections went to the essence of the record. It had not been formulated on a plan contemplating enforcement of the requirements which the government regarded as necessary to establish pure breeding. Entire reconstruction only could remedy its defects. The book, as presented, had met the purposes of its promoters and they were unwilling to consent to the change.

But the advocates of true registration, whose aid had been solicited, did not wish to sacrifice the advantages gained by this experience in a closer acquaintance with the provisions of the law and the requirements of the Departments. They prepared a book which, after much careful study and patient labor, met and solved all these problems of paramount importance to the fancy. The United States Register and Studbook for Cats, a studbook prepared under the guidance of the Departments, so completely filled the requirements of the Tariff Law that it was promptly added to the list of books recognized by the Government from which certificates of pedigree might issue, as evidence of pure breeding and eligibility to free entry into the United States. It has since been declared superior to many studbooks previously recognized for horses, dogs and other animals. The ladies' pet thus gained the distinction, so arduously sought, of being eligible to enter all ports of the United States on exactly the same terms and with identical privileges as animals of economic value.

Departmental action certifying the book was temporarily withheld, pending selection of a custodian. The new book was at once tendered to the Beresford Cat Club, through its President, to become the successor of her rejected book. It is neither pertinent nor proper here to discuss the motives which actuated its officers in failing to bring a matter of such importance to the attention of the club. It is sufficient to relate that after a reasonable length of time had elapsed - the Beresford remaining inactive despite repeated requests for immediate action by wire - the U. S. Official Register Association was organized to assume responsibility for the management of the recognized studbook. Some months' delay brought the Beresford explanation: "We did not believe that cats had been recognized." But, alas, it was too late!

The first official act of the Register Association, after certification, was to extend to every known cat club a cordial invitation to cooperate in compiling a correct record of cats' pedigrees. Every club in England and America, save two, responded with enthusiasm and congratulation. The largest and most general American club voluntarily adopted the U. S. Studbook as official register. Leaders of the two unresponsive clubs began to solicit its control. A hitherto unsuspected element in its value suddenly developed. It was made shockingly clear that the motive underlying the struggle for its acquisition was the definite purpose to convert it into a money-making device wherewith to promote individual interests in one cat club – and to assist in destroying all others.

Up to this time there had been serious friction between American cat factions. Now the disappointed leaders met, for the first time, on common ground. They suffered a common complaint. Convinced of the fact that the U. S. Studbook would remain a public benefaction, and that it could never become a private source of revenue, they combined under a name even larger than "United States," and with an objective of infinite minuteness – annihilation of the U. S. Studbook. Operations opened with most outrageous misrepresentations. Periodicals, which had solicited permission to print applications for registration and had volunteered before its recognition to "stand by it," and "take care of it," now absolutely refused any space whatever for its use. So, in order that publication and challenge of pedigrees before acceptance might not fail to afford the one possible remedy for innumerable preventable evils, the association began in June, 1903, to publish its own official organ. To every known cat club was immediately extended courteous individual invitations to regularly occupy in The Cattarian, free of expense, whatever space might be desired for the promotion of general interests.

In 1904 the salient features of the U. S. Studbook were reported to have been copied by the disgruntled faction and secretly offered for recognition as a new studbook. Private advices and certificates issued to applicants for registration stated, however, that the "new book" would be a new volume of the rejected Beresford! Considerable support was secured by alleged confidential assurances of unofficial understandings with certain government officials purporting to have culminated in an agreement to withdraw recognition from the U. S. Studbook in order to have it to bestow upon the Beresford.

The Register Association was, of course, little disturbed over the possibility of any action on the part of the Departments affecting the status of the U. S. Studbook or the rights of its clients, except for cause, but the proposition of governmental certification of two studbooks for the same breeds of cats was widely and vigorously opposed, on the grounds that another was not needed; that there was no general demand for it; and that in the event of its recognition neither book could ever become a full and complete record. The friends of the association were most loyal in support of these contentions and evidenced their disapproval of the new scheme by thousands of autographic protests, besides disqualifying, to any unbiased mind, much of the support claimed, and, in some cases, uncovering shockingly culpable proceedings.

In 1902 the Departments did not believe that cats came within the provisions of the Tariff Law or that their recognition was either necessary or desirable. In 1904 the recognition of a second studbook was seriously considered, despite the fact that the precedent of recognizing but one American book for the same breed of horses, dogs or cattle had previously been invariably adhered to.

The American Kennel Club annually records about eight thousand dogs. Another book for dogs has been found "unnecessary," though several superior ones have been offered. In less than four years the U. S. Register has recorded five hundred breeding cats of recognized breeds, about one hundred of which are shown to be pure bred. During more than fifteen years without competition, the Beresford Club recorded only seven hundred and forty-seven cats, not a single one of which has been shown to have been pure bred, and very many of which are shown to be either non-breeding or not of recognized breeds. Nevertheless a desperate effort was made to convince the Departments of the necessity for two studbooks for cats. The rejected Beresford under a nom de plume again became a candidate for recognition.

The U. S. Studbook has sought: First, to record as nearly perfect pedigrees as possible; Next, to hold the cat public responsible for their accuracy. The means employed to accomplish this end has been the enforcement to the letter of clear, concise, direct and comprehensive rules of registration and publication of all pedigrees before acceptance.

All applications have been voluntary. Not one has had a single "string" of any kind attached. No one has been "assisted" or "shown how" to register. No information has been privately furnished from the records. The operations of the Association have been conducted in the broad daylight of publicity. Not an application has been considered until duly executed before an officer authorized to administer oaths. Not a change has been permitted by anyone in any application after oath. All necessary data have been given to the public precisely as submitted for record, The personality of no applicant has entered into the examination of any application blank. The rules have been enforced alike in all cases. No favoritism has been shown. No prejudices have been fostered through the U. S. Studbook. Some two hundred applications have had to be rejected on account of unwillingness of applicants to comply with the rules of registration. Confessed participation in customs house frauds has disqualified several.

The U. S. Studbook provides for every breed of domestic cat. Longhaired cats are also indiscriminately called "Angoras" or "Persians," but authorities agree that these once distinct breeds have been intermingled for so many years even in their original habitat that, as distinct breeds, they have long been obsolete. The present tendency towards the establishment of variety, based on various colors of coat, bred out of the original cat colorings recognized by scientific men, is approved and accepted in classification, but the movement is too recent and not yet sufficiently defined for practical purposes and has, therefore, not been adopted as a basis for the determination of pure breeding. The breeds recognized by the Departments as varieties of Shorthairs were suggested in 1902 by the Prominent American Fanciers interested in securing free entry for cats into the United States. Some have proven to be open to grave criticism. Recent provision, by these same Fanciers, for classes at "American" cat exhibitions for the marsupial Australian "cat," indicate that desirable stability on this point has not yet been reached.

The Association has been asked why it provides for every known breed of domestic cat except the "Native," recently recognized as a variety of Shorthair at the instigation of the aforesaid "American" Fanciers. The U. S. Studbook provides for no "Native" breed, because, while every cat must of necessity be born somewhere, no breed of cat is today distinctly native anywhere; because, since no domestic cat existed in America until comparatively recent times and no one can state whether the first introduced were long- or short-haired, no particular breed can be authoritatively claimed to have ever been native to the United States; because nativity alone can not constitute breed; and because, since the U. S. Studbook is not designed to puzzle even the most ignorant novice, it has seemed preferable to classify on lines so broad and by characteristics so definite that all who run may read. It has seemed proper therefore, that the short-haired domestic cat (Felis domestica), possessing no distinguishing feature other than short hair and of no definite habitat, but found in all lands and known in various localities and languages as the "Alley," "Barn," "Common," "Garden," "Woodshed" or other "cat," should be called simply the "Shorthaired Cat," and that the various other breeds of domestic cats that are also short-haired should be designated by the various names (since they have known no others) of the various lands to which their various origins have always been accredited. Certificates of pure breeding can not issue for any of these distinct breeds, albeit they also possess short hair, where pedigrees show lapses, in the requisite generations of ancestors, in breeding to the "common" Shorthaired Cat, any more than certificates can issue for Longhaired Cats whose pedigrees show similar lapses.

It has also been asked why the rule was revoked permitting registration on a showing of superiority based upon awards received at exhibitions. The promoters of the U. S. Studbook were, at the time of its certification, novices in Fancy matters. They fondly believed – as they were told – that cat show prizes were indicative of worth – criterions of breeding. Voluminous documentary evidence collected by the Register Association during the past three years, demonstrating how show awards are bought, sold, exchanged, lost, strayed and even stolen, disqualifies, sufficiently for any purpose of the U. S. Studbook, their recognition as evidence of pure breeding.

There has been some complaint against the ruling of the Association that "Any person may register any cat." A claim has been put forward that none but owners should be permitted to register. The absurdity of this contention appears to be sufficiently answered by pointing out the fact that to import into the United States, under such restrictions, any animal not already registered as pure bred, would probably necessitate ownership of all his ancestors! Except as an item of interest, or a possible adjunct to identification, ownership has not proved of any particular value as a test of pure breeding.

Criticism may also arise from the fact that the U. S. Studbook has not followed time-honored classification and distribution of varieties customary among exhibition promoters. In order to be absolutely impartial the book has been prepared on an alphabetical basis throughout. Candidates for registration acknowledging spots or markings could not conscientiously be classified with solid colors. They have been placed with Bi-colors or Tabbies. Where pedigrees of such specimens have been given, it will generally be seen that they would be found wanting in any scheme of pure breeding based on variation in coloring. For similar reasons "shadings" have not been regarded as differences in color.

Registration has always been claimed by Fanciers to be "a means of identification." This has been the plea advanced as the reason why club and exhibition promoters should control studbooks. There is not one instance on record wherein any cat has ever been identified by registration - nor has there ever been any such recorded description of any cat whereby he could have been at all times or places definitely selected from others of his kind. One cat of a certain color and sex is not so different from every other cat of similar color and sex that he could be pointed out by a disinterested individual with a studbook. Besides, the majority of cats vary greatly in appearance with age, condition and circumstances. A young cat, say, an Orange-eyed Smoke, is registered as such. Six months later he has developed into a Lemon- or even Green-eyed "Bad Black." Where is the judge able to identify him by his registration? The eyes, coats and whole general appearance of all cats undergo temporary - sometimes periodic changes in greater or lesser degree. The only items not subject to change in authentic registration are those of birth and ancestry. Registration does not afford a reliable means of identification and can possess, therefore, no value - simply as registration - to club or show promoters. By registering cats one assists in the compilation of a record containing a variable equation, but possessing, nevertheless, the one inestimable desideratum of the intelligent breeder - basis for the establishment of pedigree. Pedigree has never entered into cat exhibition perquisites, yet breeders can build confidently only upon history.

There has been little careful cat breeding in America. Pedigree, quality or individual fitness, have received scant consideration. Breedings result largely from exhibition awards and "yellow" advertising. Selection is frequently determined by "advice," the necessity of winning adherents to various causes, "accommodation" for various reasons, and even simply in exchange for various club and exhibition favors. Few breeders ever see the studs to which their queens are sent. Others keep their own studs and often sacrifice improvement of breed, sincerely desired in some instances, rather than risk the danger of Fancy frauds, so well known to be frequently practiced.

The Cat Fancy has been afforded every possible opportunity for securing, through the U. S. Studbook, a record containing correct data only. No challenge has been disregarded. Each has been fully investigated and decided upon the evidence submitted on both sides.

With this outline of its origin, purpose, working methods and obstacles surmounted, the U. S. Official Register Association presents the first and only record of pure bred breeding cats ever compiled.

The Association is confident that, before its second volume appears, fancy difficulties shall have reached a solution; that more general attention will be turned to the careful breeding of cats, to compiling a correct record of pedigrees, and to effecting a cooperation from which can spring the harmony and prosperity at present so unnecessarily but conspicuously lacking.

Registrar;.
